

I AM OPEN TO LETTING SOMEONE INTO MY LIFE

I am very willing to let someone special come into my life. I enthusiastically seek out opportunities to meet new people. I know the right person is looking for me, too.

Being open to the prospect of a new relationship feels right to me. I deserve someone wonderful and know that I am wonderful too.

New relationships come easily to me. Even if relationships have been challenging in the past, they are easy for me now. People enjoy my company and want to be part of my life.

Now is the perfect time to let someone new into my life. I am ready and willing to give and receive love. My capacity for love is great, and people love me. Love comes easily to me.

I realize that relationships make life more meaningful. My life is getting more meaningful each day.

Giving new people a chance is important to me. I am open to new people, ideas, and experiences. I find others interesting. I am comfortable and happy around others.

When I feel myself being shy, I remember how intriguing I am. This puts me in the right frame of mind to let someone into my life. I am making room in my life for someone special.

Today, I am open to new relationships. I know the right person for me is right around the corner. I am open to letting someone into my life.

REFLECTION QUESTIONS

1

How can I create opportunities to meet new people and build relationships?

2

What qualities do I value in a partner, and how can I attract those qualities?

3

How does being open to new relationships enrich my life?